Homeopathic Practice

Saturday 13 May 2017
from 9:00 to 18:00

Crowne Plaza Brussels Airport Hotel
Da Vincilaan 4
1831 Diegem (Brussels)
Belgium

This 2nd DYNHOM colloquium is devoted to the links between good manufacturing practice of homeopathic medicines, results from basic research and the daily practice of homeopathy.

A coherent rationale will be proposed explaining clinical results in man and animals obtained using a remedy of metal origin (copper) and a vegetal remedy (Gelsemium).

An expert panel representing various skill areas is invited. They will present their own understanding of the matter, each contributing a piece of a puzzle which will make an integrated whole when assembled. We expect there to be an interactive discussion which will result in a number of "take home messages".

More than two years ago, UNIO HOMOEOPATHICA BELGICA initiated the DYNHOM project. This aims to elucidate the nature of the specific information contained in a homeopathic remedy. The most modern and innovative measurement methodologies were used, ranging from electron microscopy to electro-photonic analysis and nuclear magnetic resonance.

We hope that this colloquium will further communication between medical doctors for the benefit of all patients.

Dr. Philippe Devos
President Unio Homoeopathica Belgica
